TURKEY LOSSES HEAVY

Disease Has Ravaged the Flocks in Country.

Throughout the turkey raising sections of Indiana and Kentucky there has been quite a good deal of disease, and there has been heavy losses sustained by the raisers. There were more eggs set than usual last spring and the early hatches were fairly large but the raisers have had very bad luck in getting the young stock started. Even after the young turks began to grow this disease, which the turkey raisers have been unable to control, set in, and many young were lost. In one flock of 95 hatched out and started until four weeks old, all but 16 have died of this disease. — Evansville Courier.

MISS FAXON DROWNED

Saturday in Kentucky River While Bathing At Frankfort.

FUNERAL TO-DAY AT 10 A. M.

Body Was Under Water For An Hour After Going Down.

The remains of Miss Katherine Faxon arrived here yesterday morning at 5:30 and were taken to the home of Mr. Gabe Payne, her brother-in-law. Funeral services will be held at the Christian church this morning at 10 o'clock. Interment in Riverside Cemetery.

Miss Faxon's death by drowning Saturday afternoon, about 4 o'clock, in Kentucky river at Frankfort, caused a great shock to her many friends and acquaintances here. The first intelligence of her untimely and unexpected death was received here a few minutes after her body had been recovered.

Miss Faxon, who had been taking swimming lessons for a few days, and a young lady friend were in the river bathing. Miss Faxon's companion was Miss Elizabeth Culter. At the request of the young ladies Mr. George Enright had carried them in his boat about a mile above the city, on the opposite side of the river, where the stream was shallow, a sand-bar having been formed there during the heavy and continuous rains in the early spring.

Miss Faxon was not strong physically and had not become an expert at swimming. Miss Culter could not swim. While standing on the shore a launch passed and the young ladies waded into the stream to the hem of their skirts in order to catch the spray cast by the rolling waves from the launch. The parties on the launch did not dream of the young ladies being in danger and mistook their signs for help as a salute. Mr. Enright, who was riding the waves in his boat, saw the signals and saw Miss Culter sink and went to her assistance at once and saved her. Knowing that Miss Faxon could swim he gave most of his attention to Miss Culter, who was resuscitated after being taken to the shore. Miss Faxon's body was recovered about an hour after she went down. The general accepted theory at Frankfort is that, says the State Journal, the action of the waves washed the sand from beneath the young ladies' feet and their danger signals being mistaken for a salute, prevented those who might have rescued both of them, from going to their aid sooner.

Miss Faxon was born and reared here and was 22 years of age. She was a graduate of the City High School and was considered one of the most efficient stenographers in the city up to the time she left here and took a position in the office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction. Mr. Hamlett gave her a good position in his office because of her efficiency and general intelligence and ability to handle affairs that required experience. She had just completed her arrangements to go to Guthrie and spend part of her annual vacation with her mother, Mrs. I. D. Ruffner. Later she was to visit her sister, Mrs. Gabe Payne, for a time. She had an entirely new wardrobe and had laid it out for packing in her trunk before going out with Miss Culter for a swim in the river, and with girl-like joy told her friend she had sixteen new dresses to wear during vacation.

QUINT TYLER'S BRIGADE

Editor Kentuckian:

In the years 1867-8-9 and spring of 1870, Mr. Quintus M. Tyler (usually called "Old Quint") taught school at Garrettsburg, in South Christian County, Ky.

On Friday, July 25th, the boys had a barbecue on the ground on which the old schoolhouse stood. This was the first time in forty-three years that the boys had gotten together, so you can imagine our joys, our feelings and our delight.

Oh! the thoughts that crossed our minds! The reminiscences told of bygone days, and the deep expressions of friendship and love that filled our souls, as we sat under the shade of the mighty oaks now grown heavy with age, were enough to delight the heart of every one.

Well, the barbecued lamb, I don't have to say anything more about that except this: If the Lord ever made a man who could beat Calvin Kay Fleming at barbecuing meat, he is yet to be discovered.

I have had lots of experience eating barbecued meat, but never have I eaten any in the same class with that barbecued by Kay last Friday.

The following boys were present: Jno. Tom Steger, Thos. H. Major, C. Kay Fleming, Jno. S. Northington, Irving Davie, Thad J. Giles, Virgil Bradshaw, Whit W. Radford, Henry Abernathy, Mack Radford, Jas. L. Taylor, J. Floyd Giles, Jno. F. Taylor and Dr. Will B. Radford. The oldest boy was 64 years old and the youngest was 51 years old.

We all voted for a motion to live at least 25 years longer except Irving Davis, who said that he was very well satisfied with this present life and its surroundings, and as there is something a little hazy about the future abode, he preferred to vote for a resolution saying that "we should live on here forever."

Well, boys, we decided to make a permanent matter of our meetings, so next year on "the day in July in which turnip seed should be sowed, wet or dry," we will meet again at Garrettsburg. We are expected next time to bring our families with us. We elected officers. Jno. Tom Steger, the oldest boy present, was elected President and Will Radford, the youngest boy present, was elected Secretary, while Irving Davie was elected Statistician, and of course Kay Fleming was unanimously and vociferously elected official Barbecue. Now there were quite a number of the boys not present and as they all don't take your paper (which they should do) we are going to ask other papers to copy this article in order that the following boys may see it and write Irving Davie that they will be on hand next July 25, 1914, with their families, and if there are any other boys whose names are not here recorded, you write too, as we want a big meeting: Neat Giles, Mort Giles, Manson Giles, Walter Cornell, Man Cornell, William Warfield, Bryant Whitfield, Wallace Warfield, Arthur Wallace, Jim Oldham, Henry F. Moore, Tom Chilton, Herschel Moss, Jabe Cooper, Ambrose Davie, Snead Davie, Will Fox, Gross Wills, Jim White, Jas. B. Wood, Ben McGee, Robt. L. Foard, Will Hawks, M. R. Bradshaw, A. E. Word, Will Clements, Buck Griffey, Bob Adams, Jno. Mabry, Jno. W. Terrell and Dick Burke. Now boys, we spent the greatest day on earth to-day and next year you be sure to come.

I want to place one flower on the grave of "Old Quint" here: He was a man who didn't believe much in moral suasion, but hickory oil and gum switches had a great hold on him and while I attended several schools in Hopkinsville and afterwards took a course in College, I learned more, while under his teaching, than under all the others combined.

We had a glorious day, on the most memorable spot, and with the best people on earth. Now let us meet, introduce our wives and our children and be happy ourselves. July 25, 1914.

Uncle Sam Hands Out Some Plain Talk To The Greasers.

DIXON HAS BEEN RELEASED.

Peremptory Demand Made For Release of Two Other Americans.

Washington, July 28. — Strong representations, the most drastic in phrasology that have been made since the present American administration came into power, were made to the Huerta government in Mexico City yesterday.

The United States government demanded not only the prompt arrest, court martial and punishment of the Mexican federal soldiers who shot Charles B. Dixon, an American immigration official at Juarez, Mexico, but the immediate release of Chas. Bissell and Bernard McDonald, mining managers imprisoned at Chihuahua City and said to be threatened with execution.

Following the demand at El Paso, of Consul Edwards, in strong language, Dixon was released and taken to El Paso for treatment.

Arthur Walker, the negro whom Dixon was investigating when he was arrested and the soldiers who made the arrest, immediately were placed in jail.

REBELLION IN CHINA GROWS

Seven Southern Provinces With Population Double That Of United States.

THEY ARE BANDED TOGETHER

Millions In Treasury and Substantial Aid From The Japanese.

Canton, July 28. — Seven of the southern Chinese provinces, with a population twice that of the United States, have come to an agreement for joint action against Provisional President Yuan Shi Kai and the Peking Government. In an eighth province, Kiang Si, the troops under Gen. Lung sympathize with the movement.

A force of 10,000 irregular troops, chiefly composed of Hakka hillmen has left here by the way of the North River to fight the Northern army. They will make forced marches over the mountain passes of the province of Kiang Si. Other armies are being organized among the peasants and hillmen.

There are 100 mountain guns in the arsenal here and machine guns are being manufactured.

One of the principal officials here asserts that there are millions of dollars in the Treasury and that the revolutionaries will be able to carry on an energetic campaign for a long time. He declares that the Japanese are lending money to sustain the movement against Peking and are assisting in other ways.

PEMBROKE CONNECTION

With Hopkinsville's Electric Current Already an Assured Fact.

TRENTON TO BE REACHED

Public Service Co. Making Long Reach For More Business

A contract has been entered into by which our progressive neighbor, Pembroke, is to have her streets and residences lighted by electricity from Hopkinsville. The Public Service Company, next month will finish putting up the poles and wires and in a short time the Pembroke local plant will be out of service.

But this will not be all that should be done nor all that will be done. The service can easily be utilized by the farmers living along the road followed by the Public Service Co., as the electric current can be deflected from the main line to their homes, and the electric bulbs will take the place of the old-time lamp.

And further: It will not be long, probably, before the City Water Co. may find it profitable to lay its mains from here. Pembroke and thus not only furnish the citizens of Pembroke with water in their homes but also give them a opportunity of having ample protection from fire. If ever a town has needed a fire department it is Pembroke. It has probably had more destructive fires than any place of the same population in Kentucky. The people see the need of it and they are enterprising enough to get it where it is considered practicable. It may prove to be economical to have water from Hopkinsville, even though a stand pipe should have to be built to get the necessary pressure. Many of the Pembroke people have water in their homes already, but the supply for fire-fighting is not sufficient.

And who knows but that the Kentucky Public Service Co. may lay its gas pipes to Pembroke and supply the citizens, many of whom are using oil stoves, for cooking? The company is considered fully able financially to carry out any plans that it may consider profitable.

It seems to be the purpose of the Public Service Co. to also run its electric wires into Trenton and light up that place. In other words, the company is to reach a long distance to secure more business. This is commendable and ought to have been done many, many years ago. It doubtless would have been done if the original electric light company had been able.

Somebody may ask of what benefit will all this be to Hopkinsville? In carrying out plans already agreed upon the Public Service Co. will undoubtedly find it necessary to put in a much larger plant than the one now in use. That means much for this city. The capacity of the plant in use is already taxed to its full capacity, and largely increased service will require more power.

Letter From Siam.

Nan, Siam, August 10, 1912.
We have had rather a miserable household this week and last. Last week, Mr. Palmer was in bed for several days with a boil on his side and one in his ear. The day after he got up, Mrs. Palmer was taken ill with fever and we were a little anxious about her for a time. But today she has very little fever, though she is still in bed. It is the first time she has had fever since she came to this country. Mr. McCluskey and I have kept well, however. There is a great deal of fever and colds, owing to the incessant rains of the past two weeks. I have been dosing the girls very liberally with quinine. This morning, some of the school-boys came running over to Mr. Palmer, saying that one of the boys had fallen. So Mr. Palmer went over, and found that he had had a convulsion. He had fever for some days, but was going around. He is better now. None of the girls have been seriously ill.

The Peoples' boats came up Wednesday, after having been on the water twenty-six days. It took me only ten days, so you can imagine the water was very bad. Sometimes they couldn't go all day long, the water was so high, and they would have to wait for it to run down. The only way they could get along was by hugging the bank, and using the bank and the bushes to get them along. The water was so deep, they couldn't touch the bottom with their poles. The last of my goods came from Chiang Mai in these boats, and we were all afraid my books would be ruined. However, only one box of provisions had a little mud in it, and the books were as dry as a bone. When the Palmers came up, one of their boats went to the bottom and stayed there for twelve hours. So many of their wedding presents were ruined. They still have dry goods marked with the red from a silk pillow that was given to them. All the Whites' books were ruined by the sinking of a boat, when they came up; so I feel that I have much for which to be thankful, that I got mine safely.

I have been talking to the girls about the evils of betel chewing, and last week I told them, that to whoever would promise not to chew betel this term, I would give a present at the end of the term. I gave them a day to think it over, and to my surprise, the next day every girl promised. I am not crowing too soon, for they may get weak-kneed after a few days, but I should like to be able to prove that a school can be run in Laos, without the girls chewing betel. Everyone has always said that it couldn't be done, and that it wasn't worth while trying.

Nan, Siam, Sept. 21, 1912.

This has been such a very busy week; I have just finished copying my educational report, which goes off on this mail. And, in view of this hasty letter I am writing, I am sending you a copy of this annual report. Next week I shall begin on the station report, which combines all the reports from the different departments, and boils them down. Yesterday afternoon we had a station meeting, and read all these reports. So I expect to be very busy next week, too. And after the station report is off, I expect to begin to drill the girls on our closing exercises, which will take place in about seven weeks. I think I shall let the girls give "Cndere la," if we can put it into Siamese satisfactorily. My Siamese teacher has a great deal of dramatic ability and I expect her to be of great help to me.

The Taylors were to have sailed the 15th of this month, with all the new missionaries; so they should be well on the way by now. Dr. Taylor expected to stop over in China for a conference about opening a bi-lingual station in Southwestern China, where some Laos people have settled; so that may delay the party some. We want to have our closing exercises upon their arrival, provided they don't stay too long.

Our rains are slackening up now; haven't had any all week. This suits me, but for the sake of the rice we

PASSING of the PANAMA RAILWAY

E.W. PICKARD

CULEBRA CUT from the RAILWAY

Colon, C. Z.—With the completion of the Panama canal the importance of the Panama railway will decline almost to the vanishing point.

For nearly sixty years this railway has been carrying people and freight from ocean to ocean. Though only 47 miles long, it has been, for certain periods, one of the most important and most interesting railroad lines in the world. During the building of the canal, under the ownership of the United States, it has become one of the best equipped and most efficient of railways. It has given great help in the construction of the canal that will prove its virtual death.

The finding of gold in California was the cause of the building of the Panama railroad. For long years before the wild rush of argonauts in 1849 the isthmus was almost forgotten by the civilized world, but when the yellow metal was discovered on the west coast it became once more a great trade route. In order to avoid the long trip across the plains in "prairie schooners," thousands of gold-seekers went by boat to Chagres, up the Chagres river to Gorgona or Cruces and thence over the old Spanish road to Panama. This, too, was a long route and in the rainy season a painful and dangerous one because of the prevalence of disease.

To the rescue of the gold hunters came three bold Americans, W. H. Aspinwall, Henry Chauncey and John L. Stevens. In 1848 these men had asked the government of New Granada for a concession for the road, and in 1850 Stevens obtained it at Bogota. The Pacific terminus could not be otherwise than at Panama, but at first the harbor of Porto Bello was selected for the Atlantic terminus. However, a New York speculator spoiled this plan by buying up all the land about the harbor and holding it at a very high price, so Navy Bay was chosen instead.

When work on the line was begun in May, 1850, there was no celebration, no turning of the first spadeful of earth with a golden shovel.

Two Americans with a gang of Indians landed on Manzanillo Island, now the site of the city of Colon, then a desolate, uninhabited spot, and began the tremendous task of clearing the route through the dense jungle. The surveying party suffered intensely, for the land was so swampy and so infested with malaria and yellow fever bearing mosquitoes that they were compelled to sleep aboard a ship. Much of the time they carried their lunches tied on their heads and ate them standing waist-deep in the water.

The efforts of the company to obtain laborers were attended by a terrible tragedy. Eight hundred Chinese were brought over from Hong Kong, but within a week of their landing scores of them died. Opium was given the survivors and for a short time checked the ravages of disease. But the supply of the drug was shut off on account of its cost, and again the deaths became numerous. The poor Orientals in despair began to commit suicide, some by hanging, others by impalement, while some deliberately sat down upon the seashore and waited for the rising tide to overwhelm them. In a few weeks scarce two hundred were left, and these, broken in health and spirits, were sent to Jamaica.

Another shipload of laborers, this time from Ireland, met no better fate, for nearly every man died.

The material difficulties that confronted the railway builders are thus summarized by Tomes in his "Panama in 1855": "The isthmus did not supply a single resource necessary for the undertaking. Not only the capital, skill and enterprise, but the labor, the wood and iron, the daily food, the clothing, the roof to cover and the instruments to work with came from abroad. . . . Most of the material used for the construction of the road was brought from vast distances. Although the country abounded in forests, it was found necessary, from the expense of labor and the want of routes of communication, to send the timber, for the most part, from the United States, and not only were the rails, to a considerable extent, laid on American pine, but the bridges, and the houses and workshops of the various settlements were of the same wood, all fashioned in Maine and Georgia. The metal work, the rails, the locomotives and the tools were brought either from England or the United States. The daily food of the laborers, even, came from a New York market."

The first section of the road was laid through a mangrove swamp in which no bottom was found, the tracks being floated on an immense pontoon. By October, 1851, eight miles had been completed and solid ground was reached at Gatun. Lack of funds now began to hamper the builders. Investors in the states had become discouraged and the cost of labor had advanced. But a hurricane came to the rescue. Two ships loaded with gold-seekers were forced to anchor near Manzanillo Island and the passengers paid the company a handsome sum to carry them to Gatun in work cars. The news that the road had carried more than a thousand passengers reached New York and funds again flowed into the coffers of the company.

As the work progressed passengers were hauled longer and longer distances and before the line was completed the receipts from passengers and freight were considerably above $2,000,000. The last rails were laid the night of January 27, 1855, and the next day the first train passed clear across the isthmus from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The entire cost of the road up to December 31, 1855, had been something less than $8,000,000 and its gross earnings in the same time were a little more than that sum.

The rate across the isthmus was put at $25 gold, being intended to be to a certain extent prohibitive until they could get things into good running order, but so great was the volume of travel that the rate was not reduced for more than twenty years. Soon after its opening the road began to declare 24 per cent. dividends, and at one time its stock went up to 350.

In the '60's the company fell on hard times. It lost much of its freight traffic, was held up by the politicians in Bogota and then suffered by the completion of the Union Pacific railroad. Next Russell Sage and others like him got control of the directorate and wrecked the road. When De Lesseps came over to dig a canal his company bought up the stock and used the road to help in its work.

Then in 1904 the United States bought out the French company and also acquired the railway and so it became the first American road to be owned by the government. So economically and efficiently has it been conducted since then that it is cited as an argument for the government ownership of all our railways.

The building of the canal and especially the creation of the artificial Gatun lake made necessary the relocation of the Panama railroad along most of its route. The old roadbed now is under water for much of the way, the old line still in use being only about seven miles in length, from Colon to Mindi and from Corozal to Panama. From Mindi to Gatun the grade ascends to 95 feet above tide level. From Gatun the road runs east until it is four and a half miles from the canal, and then south again on great embankments across the Gatun valley.

Along this stretch passengers obtain an unusual view. Because of the construction of the Gatun dam across the channel of the Chagres river, the Chagres valley and all its tributary valleys have been converted into a lake with an area of about 164 square miles. The Gatun valley is one of these drowned arms and as the train crosses, wide stretches of water are to be seen on both sides of the track. Down below the surface are still visible the tops of giant trees that have been killed by submergence, and along the edges of the lake the tallest and hardest of the trees reach their dead limbs above the waters. Here and there is a pretty little island that not long ago was the summit of a hill, and the shore line is most picturesquely broken up by capes, peninsulas and bays.

From Monte Lirio the line skirts the shore of the lake to the beginning of the Culebra cut at Bas Obispo. Originally it was intended to carry the railroad through the Culebra cut on a 40-foot beam along the east side, ten feet above water level, but this plan was knocked out by the slides and breaks. The line was carried around Gold Hill to a distance of two miles from the canal until it reached the Pedro Miguel valley, down which it runs to Paraiso and the canal again. Thence it runs almost parallel with the channel to Panama. There are two big steel bridges on the line. One, near Monte Lirio, has a center lift span to permit access to the upper arm of Gatun lake; the other, a quarter of a mile long, across the Chagres river at Gamboa. The total cost of building the new line of the railway was $8,866,392. In addition, a large sum has been expended in increasing the terminal facilities.

Of course, even after the canal is opened, the railway will have a good deal of business, transporting people and goods between Colon and Panama, and serving the needs of the operating forces of the canal. But its days of glory have departed, and J. A. Smith, the American who has been its efficient general superintendent, recognizing that fact, has resigned and returned to the states.

They have been drilling for months and Commander E. W. Clark, in charge, has done splendid work in drilling them and expects them to acquit themselves well in all the contest for prizes for which they will enter.

They won the trip when the Kentucky-Tennessee encampment was here some months ago by proving to be the best drilled company. All their traveling expenses are paid by the National encampment.

Following is a list of the names who are at Put-in-Bay:

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular free.

DR. SOUTHALL INJURED

Unruly Horse Turned Buggy Over, Throwing the Doctor Out.

PHYSICIANS ANSWERED CALL

But First Examination Developed No Serious Results.

Yesterday, about noon Dr. J. A. Southall was painfully injured, in front of his residence, 302 South Campbell street. He had driven home to dinner in his buggy and when he arrived there the horse was going a pretty fair gait. One of his daughters was waiting at the door to be brought down town before the Doctor got his noonday meal, and when he undertook to make a short turn the horse suddenly sprang to one side when the front wheel struck a telephone pole breaking it to pieces. The buggy was turned over and the hitching post ran through the top of the buggy. The Doctor first struck the hitching post and then the curbing. Mrs. J. D. Thompson, who was near, ran to the Doctor's assistance, and she and Mrs. Southall managed to get him to his feet, when three or four men came along and picked him up and carried him into the house. Drs. Stites and Harned were called and after examination found that though Dr. Southall was badly bruised, his spine was not injured, as far as could be determined at the first examination. While the Doctor was injured yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock, it was hoped that no serious results from his fall would follow.

LETTER FROM SIAM.

hope to have some more rain. We had plenty while it lasted, but the rice has not nearly matured yet.

I did have such a time last week with a runaway girl. She is from a village eight days off, and has no parents. She is a good girl in some ways, but perfectly wild, and with a very bad temper. Every time she gets mad at an body, she announces she isn't going to stay here any longer, and leaves. This time, one of the older girls mildly corrected her for some neglect of duty, when she left in high dudgeon. It was just about dark, and I had gone over to Palmer's for supper. I stayed until about ten o'clock, and when I got back the watchman said nothing about it; so I knew a thing about it until the next morning. All the next day we hunted off a dog for her. At every report of her being near, I would put on rubber boots, and wade around through unspeakable mudholes in search of her. Mr. Palmer also went out in the afternoon, and we were near her several times, but she kept hid in the bushes. All about the school is almost jungle, and it was very easy for her to hide from us. That afternoon Mr. Palmer got the schoolboys out, and just about dark they brought her in. I gave her a good whipping and locked her up in the mosquito room, while I went out for supper. When I got back she was perfectly quiet, but in a few minutes began to howl to get out, and kick against the walls. I didn't pay any attention to her, and finally, after one of her greatest tantrums, she shut up at once, and I came to the conclusion she had found out her yelling wasn't doing any good. About five minutes later I went to let her out, and there was no one there. She had ripped off one whole panel of the wire netting, crawled out, passed my room and escaped down the back stairs. We searched the premises, but couldn't find her; nor could we get any trace of her all the next day. Towards evening, we heard that she had gone to the house of an elder, in one of the out-villages. So one of Mr. Palmer's teachers got a horse, and started out for her. He found her at this place, she having covered fifteen miles in one day. They returned the next day, making thirty miles in the two days. That girl was a pretty good walker, wasn't she? I was sorry I couldn't send her home, but there was no one to take her; so she is still here, and will behave, I suppose, until the next time she gets mad. But she isn't coming back next time.

Now I must stop and go to my dinner. Hope to have more time for writing next week, but I am not very sanguine about that.

Miss Tibbs took a party of tourists to California a month ago and has been spending part of her time in San Francisco with her uncle. While there she found a good opening for a stenographer and began her new duties at once. She likes the climate and her salary is larger than she received as a teacher. She was presiding teacher in the High School study hall and her place will be hard to fill.

Dogs Not to Blame.

July and August used to be called very commonly the "dog days," and the term is still often heard. Most persons seem to think that the name is due to a special susceptibility of dogs to go "mad" during hot weather.
The term has no reference to dogs, however, but was given by the Romans, who called the time while the earth is nearest to Sirius, the dog star, dies canis, the days of the dog. Rabies is not so frequent during July and August as it is during February and March. Dogs are no more to be feared now than at other times. They often need water and find it hard to get sometimes, and much needless cruelty is inflicted on them. Some persons are suspicious of them because the dog days have been given a bad name.

Village and small town officials in many parts of the country still insist on dogs being muzzled at this season, and thus make life miserable for the animals, but they only make themselves ridiculous by clinging to the old exploded idea of the meaning of the dog days.—New York Herald.

"Louisville-Made Week".

Louisville, Ky., July 27.—"Louisville-made week" is a unique stunt to be pulled off by the local manufacturers, August 25-30 when practically every window in the downtown shopping district will be devoted to display of homemade products. The coming exhibit will be the first of the kind ever held here, and manufacturers say it will prove a revelation to consumers. All of the commercial organizations of the city are back of the project.

Sues On Insurance Policy.

Lexington, Ky., July 28.—Mrs Anna
Trout Roberts, widow of Samuel J.
Roberts, who was editor of the Lex-

York, for $5,085, the face of an accident policy carried by her husband, on which it had refused payment.
Roberts died of blood poisoning after an operation, and the plaintiff in her petition says that the policy provides indemnity for such an injury.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK EDITION OF THE NEW YORK WORLD

Practically a Daily at the Price of a Weekly.

No Other Newspaper in the World Gives So Much at So Low a Price.

This is a time of great events and you will want the news accurately and promptly. The Democrats, for the first time in sixteen years, will have the Presidency and they will have the Presidency and they will also control both branches of Congress. The political news is sure to be of the most absorbing interest.

There is a great war in the Old World, and you may read of the extinction of the vast Turkish Empire in Europe, just as a few years ago you read how Spain lost her last foot of soil in America, after having ruled the empire of half the New World.

The World long since established a record for impartiality, and anybody can afford its Thrice-a-Week edition, which comes every other day in the week, except Sunday. It will be of particular value to you now. The Thrice-a-Week World also abounds in other strong features, serial stories, humor, markets, cartoons; in fact, everything that is to be found in a first class daily.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK WORLD'S regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year, and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and the Hopkinsville Kentuckian together for one year for $2.65.

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $3.00.

TRUTH TRIUMPHS

Hopkinsville Citizens Testify For The Public Benefit.

A truthful statement of a Hopkinsville citizen, given in his own way should convince the most skeptical about the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills. If you suffer from backache, nervousness, sleeplessness, urinary disorders or any form of kidney ills use a tested kidney medicine.

A Hopkinsville citizen tells of Doan's Kidney Pills.

Could you demand more convincing proof of merit?

Mrs. J. H. Morris, 514 O'Neal St., Hopkinsville, Ky., says: "I suffered from severe pains in my back and could find nothing that would do me any good. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended, I got a box. They greatly benefited me."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

"I suppose you are proud of your wife's literary success?" said the intimate friend. "Yes," replied Mr. Stubbs. Anybody can see that I am short, fat, bald, and compelled to wear specs."—The Pathfinder.

For Cuts, Burns and Bruises

In every home there should be a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, ready to apply in every case of burns, cuts, wounds or scalds. J. H. Polanco, Del Valle, Tex., R. The state board urges that all old school books be sterilized and tells how it can be done to the damage of the bacteria, but not to the books. We suppose it is right. Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

SHIPPER AVERTED A TRAGEDY

Would Let None of His Hogs Be Shot, at Least While He Was There to Prevent It.

Sam Blank of Blank Center, Kan., raises hogs. He ships to the Kansas City market. Along last year Mr. Blank painfully observed that on nearly every shipment he received notice that one or more hogs died on the trip to market. He discussed the matter with his neighbors and they advised him.

"Loky 'ere, Sam," they told him. "The fellows up at the stock yards in Kansas City are stealing and killing your hogs and getting money out of them. You better go along next time and watch."

When shipping time came, Sam, wary and vigilant, accompanied his hogs to market.

To avoid confusion among so many carloads of cattle the stock yards company has a checking system. The yardmen look over the cars, note where they are from, the numbers of the cars, and what chute the stock will be consigned to. They turn this memoranda over to the salesman.

Suspicious Sam was on hand when a yardman looked over his car.

"Carload of hogs from Blank, Kan.," the yardman sang out to the memorandum clerk. "Car No. 3187. Chute 8."

That was what Sam was waiting for. He was on his feet like a Jack in the box.

"Not on your life," he shouted. "I'm onto you fellows. You don't shoot a darned hair off their backs."

What happened thereupon has not been recorded.—Kansas City Star.

TOO LATE

He—Would you be satisfied with love in a cottage?

She—A cottage? Not for me.

He—I'm sorry. My cottage is at Newport. I'm sorry, indeed. Good-by.

EXPERIMENT JUSTIFIED.

That there is a marked improvement in the general health of school children, since medical inspection of schools was made a rule, although many suffer from defective sight and teeth, is stated in a report made by Dr. Laberge, assistant medical health officer, Montreal. Dr. Laberge also states that infectious diseases are less prevalent, while skin diseases have practically vanished. He argues that much of this is due to close medical inspection, and to the willingness of principals and teachers to aid the inspection.

APPRECIATES CUCUMBERS.

In Cairo and Alexandria, Egypt, cucumbers are truly appreciated. They are developed to their utmost. Sometimes they reach a length of two and a half feet, and they are much eaten and liked by the natives. Moreover, the beautiful women of these cities understand the value of cucumber juice, and it is squeezed out of the huge green vegetable for them to use a lotion for the skin.

HAD TO STOP.

"Why did you make your building only twelve stories high?" "Couldn't lease any offices on the thirteenth floor."

ACCOUNTED FOR.

"Why did Adam and Eve name their first child Cain?" "I suppose they did it after they found out what they were raising."

DOMESTIC FRANKNESS.

Pet—Do you think I'd look better if I had my beard shaved off?

Dearest—Of course not; just when your face is almost covered?—Puck.

The Love Letters of a Confederate General

WE begin in the November issue a series of real love-letters written over fifty years ago by one of our national heroes to his sweetheart during the period of '61 to '65. This great general will go down to posterity as having accomplished one of the most brilliant feats of arms in the history of the world. He was as great a lover as he was a general, therefore these letters combine authentic history and exquisite romance. They sound a human note that no other work of literature has done in a decade; it is war, it is romance, it is history, it is literature. You simply can't afford to miss this wonderful series—an inside story of the Civil War now published for the first time and containing all the freshness of a contemporary happening. These letters will grip you hard, and hold your interest from first to last. Fill out the coupon and send it now before you forget it.

BRAWNY BOATMEN OF PERU
They Looked Like Egyptian Galley
Slaves to a Traveler in South America.

Harbors there are none from Guayaquil (Ecuador) to Callao (Peru), the ships anchoring about a half mile off shore, a fact that in these peaceful waters entails neither the discomforts nor inconveniences that it does on other coasts. Here at Eten we hoisted our new passengers aboard in a sort of car like those used in roller coasters, four people at a time, writes Ernest Peixotto in Scribner's. Freight is transferred in lighters which they call lanchas. Even before we had been "received" by the captain of the port several of these could be seen approaching us.
How can I describe them? They are about the size of a sea-going schooner. Five heavy beams laid across the bow form seats for ten men, whose brawny arms and well-developed deltoids and pectorals would do honor to trained athletes. Their type—the broad, flat face, the high cheek bone, the narrow eyes set ailt and the drooping mustache—plainly show their descent from the Chimu, that strange Chinese race whose civilization seems to have centered about Trujillo, somewhat farther down the coast. Clad only in Jerseys and trousers, bareheaded or shaded by wide-rimmed straw hats, each lays hold of a gigantic sweep, five on a side. And how they row, wing and wing, throwing the whole weight of their mighty frames upon the oars, rising in their seats till standing—the only boatmen I ever saw who suggested the galley slaves of the Egyptians or the men who manned the Roman triremes!

BARGAIN INSTINCT

"I hear Miss De Rocks is engaged to the duke. Do you think it was a case of love on her part?"
"No; it's another case of the feminine bargain instinct. The duke's first figures were $200,000, but he dropped to $198,000."

FRENCH PHYSICAL EDUCATION.

The physical education of the youth of France is soon to be taken in hand and properly directed. There is already, and there has been for some time, a steadily growing enthusiasm among the boys of the country for athletics, but this enthusiasm, unless properly regulated, is not calculated to produce anything like the best results. M. Gabriel Benvalot is at the head of an important and popular movement which has for its object the proper direction of the physical education of the French youth.

MISTREATING THE HELPLESS.

"I see by the papers that a woman says her husband spanked her every time she got drunk."
"What do you think of a man who would do that?"
"I think he took an unfair advantage. He might at least have waited until she got sober."

OUR LANGWIDGE.

She—Why do you call Mr. Gruff a blunt man?
He—Because he is always saying sharp things.

WHAT TO WEAR.

"George is going to take me to my first baseball game this afternoon. What would you advise me to wear?"
"An air of silence."

GAVE HER HIS WORD.

"She thinks he is her ideal man."
"Now, what in the world ever made her think that?"
"He told her he was."

WHO WOULDN'T?

Gibbs—It costs more to live than it did a hundred years ago.
Dibbs—All the same, I wouldn't like to be one of those who lived then.

Pains All Over.

Houston, Tex.—"For five years," says Mrs. L. Fulencheck, of this place, "I suffered with pains all over, especially in my back and side, and was so weak I could hardly do my house work. A friend told me of Cardui. Since taking it, I feel so much better! Now I can do all my housework and pains don't bother me any more at all." Cardui is a strength-building medicine. Fifty years of success have produced, amongst its many users, confidence in Cardui and what it will do. During this time, Cardui has relieved the female ailments of over a million women. Why not yours? Try it, to-day. Your druggist sells it.

WHICH IS MORE FASTIDIOUS?

One Man Claims the Masculine Sex is More Enamored of Neatness Than the Feminine.

"Have you ever asked yourself this question?" asked a perceiving young man. "I have come to the conclusion that in many things they are and more particularly about food and table appointments. Perhaps this is because women are habituated to the seamy side of cookery, to the sight of uncooked articles. Men see only the results of all these processes, some of them disagreeable enough, whereas even the most fastidious mistress sometimes, however reluctantly, comes upon the basement operators in the midst of a far from esthetic task. The gilded youth of today is a most terribly fastidious person. His chief cult is sensitive nerves and his 'culture' seems a heinous offense. I was made to think about these things the other day when 'Tim,' speaking about a girl whose acquaintance he had lately made, agreed that she was very pretty, very attractive, etc., 'but,' he added, 'I don't like looking at her.' Her hair is never tidy; pieces of it stream down at the back, and there is something about the back of her waist that is disorderly." I give you his own masculine expressions. I fancy neatness appeals immensely to men. Soiled gloves, crushed handkerchiefs, untidy footgear, have done more to disillusion the masculine creature than the culprits who permit themselves these disorders can ever imagine.

BY-PRODUCT OF MUCH VALUE

Innumerable Uses to Which Sawdust May Be Put Are Astonishing to Man Who Has Not Known.

The family man, who occasionally indulges in home carpentering, knows full well how sawdust seems to work into every crevice, to cling to one's clothes, and to make itself a general nuisance.

But, despised though sawdust may be, it is a by-product with many uses. Used as an absorbent for nitroglycerine, it produces dynamite. Used with clay, and burned, it produces a fireproof brick that makes excellent and very durable material for building work.

Sawdust mixed with some suitable binding material and compressed makes splendid molding and imitation carvings, whilst if mingled with Portland cement it produces a most lasting material for floors.

Hollow walls that one desires to make sound-proof, or proof against frost, may be packed with sawdust, and as a material for protecting fragile articles in transit there is nothing better. Sawdust is used as a non-conductor of heat in which to pack in all the large icehouses.

PROGRESS ON CAPE COD CANAL.

It is estimated that the 25,000,000 tons of shipping which rounds Cape Cod during the year will be so far benefited by the opening of the Cape Cod canal that it will be perfectly willing to pay a toll for the use of the canal. The 11,000,000 tons of coal shipped annually to eastern ports will find the inner and sheltered route of great advantage, and probably the greater part of this, or such part as is carried in barges, will avail itself of the canal.

NOT MUCH ON HIS MIND.

"Dobble should be a happy man."
"Why do you think he should be a happy man?"
"Because the most serious problem that confronts him now is whether to buy summer union suits or two-piece garments."

DIFFERENT PLACE.

"Pop, doctors don't bleed people like they used to, do they?"
"No, sonny; they do it now in their bills."

ITS UNCERTAINTY.

"It is not always certain to tell the fruit of a political deal."
"No, it may be a lemon or it may be a plum."

THAT'S SO!

"It's very odd."
"What?"
"That a fellow isn't in the swim when society throws him overboard."

ANOTHER FIRE HORROR.

"Have you found out what started the blaze in that broom factory?"
"Not yet; but we're making a sweeping investigation."

The game Saturday at Mercer Park was lost to Harrisburg by a decision of Umpire Spencer that was clearly wrong. Pearson put a Texas leaguer over second base that Steele picked up as it hit the ground and threw it to the home plate to head off Means, who was running home, but failed in the attempt. The crowd began leaving the park when Spencer decided that Pearson's hit was a put-out, caught before it hit the ground. As Means had gone home, he declared him out and retired the side. The disgusted Moguls played the next inning in a half-hearted way and Harrisburg got one over. The second game was played at Nashville Sunday and won by the Moguls. The third was played here yesterday.

GEO. W. McKNIGHT OF HOWELL, KY.

Howell District's Candidate For County Assessor.

Reproduced herewith is a likeness of Mr. Geo. W. McKnight, who was the first man to announce that he was out for the Democratic nomination for county assessor. He was also the first man to hold a public sale of registered Duroc-Jersey swine in Christian county. He has now gotten the stock breeders started and they are holding sales every fall.

Mr. McKnight says he is now going to do his best to win the race for assessor, and he takes this opportunity of saying to his friends and the voters of Christian county that he is going to do all he can before the primary in August, but those whom he fails to see mustn't think hard of him, because this is a big county. He asks every one to come out on August 2 and cast his vote for him in the primary, assuring all that their support will be appreciated. His motto, he says, is now and has always been, "Justice to Everyone," and that he will guarantee to everyone who votes for him that he will never regret it. Howell, South Christian, has never had a man to represent it, and he thinks he is due this much in the present contest, if nothing else. His record stands beyond question.

Mr. McKnight wants to thank all for their kindness and hospitality while with them. He says things look brighter to him now than ever before, and from the way the voters talk he feels sure of the nomination. Advertisement.

TO THE DEMOCRATS OF CHRISTIAN CO.

When I announced myself as your candidate for County Attorney, I did not anticipate any opposition in the primary, as I had on two occasions been heretofore taken the nomination at the request of your County Committee, when there was no hope of election and when the sole purpose of making the race was to keep the party together and get the county in shape where we could make it Democratic.

I made each race as if I expected to be elected and gave liberally of my time and means for what I considered to be a fight for Christian county, and now as we have a chance to win I believe the Democrats of Christian county will recognize that I am entitled to their support at this time, as I have always been able to reduce the Republican majority in this county; and when running for the Senate in 1905, I carried the county by fifty-two when most of the ticket lost. And then again you recognize the fact that it is going to take experience to win the election this fall and experience to handle the office, and the business of the county after being elected, and although I am still a young man, I have had 18 years legal and business experience.

This is one of the most important offices, if not the most important office, that you have to fill, as the County Attorney not only has to see that the laws are enforced, but that the taxes paid by the people are properly expended, especially that the county gets the full benefit of the road and bridge fund. It is strictly a business office, and unless the man has a large business as well as legal experience he cannot conduct the office as it should be conducted.

I have always been deeply interested in the business affairs of my county and have always wanted to be your County Attorney, and the only reason I was not elected in 1905, was because the politics in our district had gotten in such shape in the Senatorial race, that I was asked to make the race for the Senate in order that we might have harmony and be able to get up a Democratic ticket in Christian county, that would have some chance of winning.

That race was a sacrifice and the only reward that I received was the satisfaction of seeing part of the county ticket elected. Everything that I did in that campaign was for the benefit of the Democratic ticket and for Christian county.

I didn't please every one during my term of office as Senator from this district, but I conscientiously did the best I could and any errors that I made were errors of judgment.

A few people have been trying to work up opposition to me in this race, by making false assertions about what I did and what I promised to do as Senator from this district.

I believe the salvation of our government is publicity and I am willing and anxious for the people to know all of my public acts both past and future and instead of going around on the street corners and elsewhere insinuating that Rives did this or that Rives did that, or Rives promised to do this or promised to do that, I would respectfully ask them to get a correct account of my acts and publish them to the world and especially to my constituents in the grand old county of Christian, which I consider the best county in the State and inhabited by the best people; and while the county is normally Republican, there are no stancher Democrats than those in Christian, and I know they will be willing to accord a fair hearing to any one who is willing to submit all the facts to them.

I believe in our State primary law, as we cannot have a real government by the people until the people take an interest, not only in the final election, but in their party nominations.

When I was nominated for State Senator we had a race on for United States Senator, and our district was very much divided between the two opposing candidates, and always believing that the United States Senator should be elected by a direct vote of the people, I promised the leaders for each candidate, that I would make the race unpledged and that after the election they could submit the matter in any fair way to the Democrats in my district for instructions to me, as to whom they wanted me to vote for United States Senator, which they agreed to do. After I was elected I made every effort to get them to do this, but declined on the ground that it would be some expense and they did not care to go into the matter, and being left free I voted as I thought to be to the best interest of my county.

The most important questions before us our schools and our roads. If elected, it is my aim and purpose to try to put the affairs of Christian county on a business basis and try to see that for every dollar spent on our roads we get a dollar's worth of service. If not elected, I will do all in my power to help the successful man to accomplish the same purpose. Yours very truly,
FRANK RIVES.

It Pays to Advertise.

Bosom Brown, who was fined for exhibiting herself through a slit skirt in Virginia has secured a chorus job in New York, it is understood.

There are thousands of modern examples. But the first instance was the hen.

Nobody cares anything about goose eggs. People won't buy them. But as for hen eggs, everyone knows what these things cost and how popular they are. When a goose lays an egg no one knows—or cares—anything about it. It's different with the hen. She tells the whole neighborhood. Everyone knows it.

So we see once again that it pays to advertise.—Louisville Times.
